COURSE OVERVIEW

Decision making is fundamental to human activity. Individuals and groups make decisions for both personal and organizational purposes. Behavioral scientists from economics, psychology, sociology, and management have studied the way in which individuals and groups make decisions under various conditions. Scholars in mathematics, computer science, and machine learning have studied the computational properties and applications of decision processes. Both families of research provide important insights for public administration, where interest in decision making is motivated by pragmatic concerns of policy and management, rather than a conceptual understanding of the decision making process itself.

Public affairs decisions are made in the context of imperfect information; uncertain events, conditions, and outcomes; and conflicts over values. Yet despite these challenges, decisions must be made in order to meet a wide range of societal objectives. A diverse set of models and methods can be used to analyze and guide decisions in operational, managerial, and policy settings. In this course, we will cover major topics and insights from the decision sciences. Specifically, we will consider:

- The problems we face and the decisions we make in public policy and public management
- The value of models in decision making and what makes a “good” decision
- Challenges in decision making and modeling decisions

- Major types of models and their associated methods in decision making
- Applications of decision making models and methods in policy and management settings
- Current issues and the future of administrative decision making in the public sector

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

There are three core learning objectives for this course:

- o Understand decision making from a theoretical and practical perspective
- o Be familiar with techniques for making decisions in the public sector
- o Understand how to use information and values to aid in decision making

Course learning objectives are pursued via podcasts, lectures, class activities and discussion, and readings. Student understanding of decision analysis concepts and methods is assessed by items on two exams, six homework assignments (problem sets and short essays), and various class activities.

BASIS FOR ASSESSMENT

Your grades will be based on the following exams and activities:

Midterm Exam (20%; Wednesday, October 14, regular class time)

The midterm will cover key concepts and skills from the first seven weeks of the course. Format will include multiple choice, short answer, and essay responses.

Final Exam (30%; Wednesday, Dec 16, 12pm-1.45pm)

The final exam will be comprehensive, though the emphasis will be on concepts and skills covered since the midterm. Format will include short answer and essay responses.

I do not administer make-up exams.

Homework Assignments (35%; 6 assignments)

Homework assignments will provide an important opportunity for you to problem solve, work with classmates, and develop your decision making skills. You will submit your assignments through the Carmen dropbox.

Detailed prompts and grading rubrics will be provided upon assignment.

Participation (15%; attendance, engagement, and contributions to class exercises)

Your participation in class discussions and group exercises is imperative to doing well in this course. As we shall discover during the course, collaboration will increase your understanding of the material and ability to problem solve.

Formatting requirements for all written assignments: Microsoft Word Document; Double-spaced, 12-point font, 1 inch margins, and include page numbers.

Assignment Schedule

Assignment	Due Date
Homework #1	Friday, September 18
Homework #2	Wednesday, September 30

Grade Appeals

Grades on assignments are intended to reflect the overall quality of performance of the student. You may appeal your grade on an assignment if you think the grade does not reflect the quality of your performance on the assignment. To appeal a grade, submit a clear written explanation describing why you believe the assigned grade is inappropriate within one week after your work is returned. You must cite specific components of the rubric for the given assignment. I will carefully consider all such appeals. If I re-grade the assignment, I will re-grade the entire assignment. As a result, the final grade for the re-graded assignment may be greater than, less than, or equal to the original grade.

Transformation of numerical grades to letter grades will correspond to this schedule:

A	93-100	C+	77-79.9	E	59.9 and below
A-	90-92.9	C	73-76.9
B+	87-89.9	C-	70-72.9
B	83-86.9	D+	67-69.9
B-	80-82.9	D	60-66.9

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY & ACADEMIC MISCONDUCT

From <http://oaa.osu.edu/coamfaqs.html#academicmisconductstatement>

The Ohio State University and the Committee on Academic Misconduct (COAM) expect that all students have read and understand the University's Code of Student Conduct, and that all students will complete all academic and scholarly assignments with fairness and honesty. Failure to follow the rules and guidelines established in the University's Code of Student Conduct may constitute "Academic Misconduct." Sanctions for misconduct could include a failing grade in this course and suspension or dismissal from the University.

In the Ohio State University's Code of Student Conduct, Section 3335-23-04 defines academic misconduct as: "Any activity that tends to compromise the academic integrity of the University, or subvert the educational process." Examples of academic misconduct include (but are not limited to) plagiarism, collusion (unauthorized collaboration), copying the work of another student, and possession of unauthorized materials during an examination. Ignorance of the University's Code of Conduct is never considered an "excuse" for academic misconduct.
